“Lee Tung Avenue” presents “Through the Lens of Love” In Search of Hong Kong’s Undiscovered Beauty

(Hong Kong – 14 March 2016) Hong Kong is a remarkably photogenic city and those venturing beyond everyday snaps of food and friends can find inspiration in both the natural and urban environment, from cultural buildings and lively streetscapes, to verdant mountains and sparkling seas.

To give photography lovers the opportunity to discover the hidden beauty of Wan Chai District, “Lee Tung Avenue” will hold “Through the Lens of Love” – a series of photographic-related activities to be held from March to September. These activities will include a photography exhibition by award-winning 19-year-old photographer Kelvin Yuen; a Sharing Camera CSR program with used cameras collected and given to underprivileged kids; a Beautifood Workshop, which will present lessons on how to take the perfect food picture; a photography sharing session and Wan Chai Photo Walk during Summer holidays; and a photography competition will be organized as a finale program. These activities will give participants an opportunity to explore the charm of Wan Chai with master photographers, while learning about the cultural, architecture and food of this intriguing area.

Kicking off “Through the Lens of Love” for “Lee Tung Avenue” on 27 February with “Instameet”, “Lee Tung Avenue” will invite National Geographic Photo Contest 2015 prize-winner (youth group, Taiwan section) , 19 year-old Kelvin Yuen to host a photography exhibition for free where public can enjoy wonderful photographs taken by Kelvin, including his work “The world of a wild child who chases his dream” and “A night in a dream”, along with other photographs of natural Hong Kong, all of which lead us to view the beauty of Hong Kong from a different angle.
